

Dear Physics 211 students,

We hope you're all doing well as we push into the final couple weeks of the semester! You've all worked so hard this semester, and there's just a little more to go before the break, so let's all finish strong!

I'm writing you an e-mail to give you some information about the lab practical exam as well as the make-up lab:

The lab practical exam is essentially a prelab you should try to complete on your own by 8 AM CST on 5 May 2021 (the last day of instruction). It will be opened to you 8 AM CST on 24 April 2021 (tomorrow). This is an exam, so you cannot get help or use outside resources, however it's not proctored/timed, so feel free to take as much time as you want with it. You can use any resource on the course website that you want to help you with it. The first two sets of questions are surveys, the third set of questions is about interpreting IO lab data, and the final set of questions is about statistics. These will be graded for correctness, so take your time answering them! If you miss any of the questions, you'll then have a day to fix your answers to get 80% of the credit back on missed questions. The details for feedback and the late deadline can be seen on the smart.physics calendar.

The make-up lab will be posted next Friday and will be due by 8 AM on 5 May 2021. We'll send an email out with some more details on the make-up assignment next Friday when it is posted.

From,

Sai for the Phys 211 team

p.s. consider filling out the ICES forms, we're always looking to improve things for students!
