Greetings!

As the subject line states, hour exam 1 will now be held on Wednesday September 30th at 7:00 p.m. I sincerely apologize for the change in date, but it was not in our control. For the many students taking MATH 241, hopefully this makes your lives a bit easier. But undoubtedly the change is difficult for many.

It turns out the CBTF is unable to proctor the exam anytime next week, so your physics TA’s will be doing the proctoring. It will be similar to the CBTF setup, but there are a few important changes.

1) Everyone has been registered in our system to take the exam at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday. So if that works you don’t need to do anything.

2) If you need to take the exam at a different time, please go to the course gradebook https://my.physics.illinois.edu/gradebook/, you will now see a section labelled “Upcoming Exam Information”

You can choose to take the conflict exam starting at 5pm with the dropdown. But if that doesn’t work, click on the [Request a special conflict link] (for example if you are in a different time zone). This will offer the Thursday, 10/1 8:00 a.m. exam, as well as a place to write if none of the times work for you.

I’ll provide additional details next week about getting your zoom link for actually taking the exam, but for now please mark your calendars that the exam will be on Wednesday and if 7:00 pm does not work, go to the gradebook to request a different time.

As promised this semester is an adventure!

Tim